pausing at Playalinda Beach, Florida

Robert Frost walk with me we are rangers with the same first name choose the road splits together you tire of the New Hampshire Appalachian Trail the Florida beaches it is the beachers expose their parts how unlike this sand is to Vermont's Long Trail after one hundred steps, Robert crosses his legs even the dead have to pee that man whizzes on the grains, I am too shy you can wee in the sea or piss on a palm tree there are more choices on a beach than in a forest

I chose the fork in the woods where should I piddle returning to life is weary with only a day pass, I must return to Old Bennington cemetery visit me at my plot when you take your last step inkle your ashes on my lawn the circling crow

newcomers share first

“my name is Edgar, I loved Virginia, Annabel Lee, she got T.B. I cannot forget

I guzzled bottles in Philadelphia, slept in gutters in the Bronx, was found on the floor in Baltimore

I am a raven, the thirst the thirst, I drain brandy bottles with my beak, fall off my perch, hang down from my claws I am an alcoholic”

the corvid flies out the window thanks for sharing, keep coming back
